

The Royal Society of Biology Research Dissemination Committee

Research Communication Newsletter

August 2019

Spotlight on open access

Significant economic benefits? Enhancing the impact of open science for knowledge users

Academic review promotion and tenure documents promote a view of open access that is at odds with the wider academic community

Plans for a new Open Access Book Network take shape

Guest Post: Plan S Version 2 and the Cost of Quality

Factors Influencing Open Access in UK Research Institutions

Learned Societies, the key to realising an open access future?

Publication policy and debate

Guest Post — Transitioning to a New Peer Review System: From Scary to Successful

Cambridge announces open research platform, Cambridge Open Engage

Publisher invites academics to help shape development of its new early research and collaboration service

Jisc announces three new library services

Library hub discover, library hub compare, and library hub cataloguing will make it easier for UK higher education

Guest Post — The Problem Solvers You Don't Know About Yet: Valuing Disability in the Publishing Industry

Nobelists backs internal review for papers, 'trust' scores for scientists

The 'best' scientists lack time for peer review, and academics should be rated for 'worthy' papers, argues Dan Shechtman

Balancing Author Satisfaction with Reviewer Needs

An innovative way to publish

The research community needs to find ways to reward study design and methodology as much as the final result. A publishing format called Registered Reports offers a means of addressing this challenge.

Guest Post — Building Pipes and Fixing Leaks: Demystifying and Decoding Scholarly Information Discovery & Interchange

Authorship: are the days of the lone research ranger numbered?

Data suggest that single authorship is continuing to decline across the world, but will it always have a place?

Bringing Transparent Peer Review to the Physical Sciences and Beyond

Springer Nature and ResearchGate extend content sharing pilot following positive feedback

International publishing

University of California's showdown with the biggest academic publisher aims to change scholarly publishing for good

Why India is striking back against predatory journals

Our foe is determined and adaptable, says Bhushan Patwardhan. A list of credible titles is the latest salvo in the fight against shoddy scholarship.

Academics think, 'others value journal prestige and metrics, not me'

Study pinpoints 'disconnect' between what academics value when submitting work for publication, and what they think others value

Click here to unsubscribe from this publication

Or, manage your subscription to this and to other RSB publications by logging into mySociety and choosing 'My Subscriptions' under 'Me and the RSB'.

Royal Society of Biology

Science Policy Team

1 Naoroji Street

London

WC1X 0GB

policy@rsb.org.uk

Please note that any views or opinions presented in this email are solely those of the author and do not necessarily represent those of the Royal Society of Biology.