

School Biology Teacher of the Year Award

(11 - 18 category)

Do you teach biology to students aged 11–18?

Could you be the Royal Society of Biology's School Biology Teacher of the Year?

This award aims to recognise outstanding and inspirational teaching of biology within the UK's school system.

The Royal Society of Biology is looking for examples of:

- Outstanding and inspirational biology teaching
- Teachers who inspire pupils beyond the classroom by supporting high quality extra-curricular learning opportunities both in and outside the classroom
- Teachers delivering inspirational INSET training for colleagues to share best practice in the teaching of biology while spreading their enthusiasm
- Teachers who are influencing the teaching and learning of biology beyond their own institution, in other schools or educational settings

The winner will receive:

- £500 for the winning teacher
- Up to £500 of free Oxford University Press resources for the winning teacher's school
- Prizes from UK 3B Scientific Ltd

Full details and an application form can be found at:

www.rsb.org.uk/stoy

Supported by:

