

Do you work or study in the life sciences?

The Royal Society of Biology (RSB) is the UK's leading professional association for the life sciences, and offers a range of membership grades and professional benefits to support members throughout their education and career.

If you work in and around, study, or have a general interest in the life sciences, RSB membership can provide you with invaluable support and information.

Five reasons to join your professional association

1 Enhance your professional status

Demonstrate your status as a biologist with post nominal letters
Access a number of professional registers, underpinned by a straightforward CPD scheme

2 Broaden your knowledge

Receive The Biologist magazine (published six times a year), and access the archive
Save up to 50% on a carefully selected range of training courses - suitable for all levels

3 Access funding opportunities

Apply for up to £500 to support travel in connection with biological study, teaching or research
Apply for funding to run your own regional public engagement event

4 Develop your biology network

Meet and network with members at local and national networking events, organised by the RSB, its proactive local branch network, and organisational members

5 Support the future of UK biology

Have your say on the future of UK biosciences research and practice by contributing to the RSB's policy consultations and requests for member input

Join To become a member, or for more information:

visit: www.rsb.org.uk
email: membership@rsb.org.uk speak to: your local RSB contact

Your local RSB contact:

Name:

Contact information: